

There's No Moon Tonight

Joseph C. Eco, EdD

There's darkness outside.
And it creeps along heavens.
The twinkling stars that lighten up
A lovely-sorrowful sky.

There is no moon tonight
No one to applaud the dancing clouds.
Nothing to gaze at the calm lands
And to admire the waves of the peaceful oceans.

There's only darkness outside,
And black blanket covering the horizons,
An empty painting, a vast emptiness.
All seeking the glimpse of the moon.
